

Spin Doctors

Exposing the Multi-National Veterinary-Industrial Pet Food Complex

Review by Dr Colin Melbourne BSc.(Zoo), BVSc., MRCVS. English missionary in Asia

If you trust your national government, politicians, and medical system then read no further: You've been brainwashed and deluded beyond reach.

However, for those eager to open "Spin Doctors", as you read, you'll understand the experience Dr. Lonsdale has been through, in five decades of campaigning against corruption by the multi-national veterinary-industrial pet-food complex.

He writes in his introduction, "These days there is a sizeable population of pet owners who distrust the veterinary-industrial pet food complex."

If the corrupt perpetrators were merely making billions in profit from their greed and maladministration, it might be swept under the carpet, but the effect on the lifespan, health and vigour of our cats and dogs is devastating.

The "Spin Doctors" is a detailed catalogue of Dr. Lonsdale's repeated alerts to veterinarians and regulatory bodies worldwide, to raise public awareness of the continuing tragedy, and his efforts to bring the culprits to legal account.

Veterinarians have been carelessly indoctrinated to believe Carnivores can thrive on an ultra-processed mixture of; genetically modified maize, vegetables, offal, preservatives, flavourings, colourings, and chemicals: Commonsense alone proves the lie.

Imagine feeding Lions and Tigers at the zoo a daily bucket of kibble and dry-cat food instead of the raw whole animals they actually live on in the wild: Ludicrous, you'll agree.

But that's what the veterinary-industrial pet-food complex is encouraging owners to do right now to pet cats and dogs worldwide.

The result of this perverse man-made diet continues to be a litany of disease, suffering, and immunologic collapse, upon which practitioners capitalize with specially formulated and 'nutritionally balanced' tins of processed pulp, with even toothpaste and brushes to control rotting gums and teeth.

Please consider the basic message of this documentary book and then accept the challenge to find out for yourself the regenerative power of feeding your pet Carnivore what it was designed to exist on: Whole fresh animals, raw meat and bone.

Rabbits and rodents may not be sold at your local market, but they do sell clean chicken frames, and fish: So start there.

Wean your cat or dog, long addicted to polluted poison in packets and tins, and offer them fresh raw meat and bone.

Then you'll witness for yourself the joy and vigour your malnourished pet has been wilfully deprived of until now.

If you need further encouragement Dr. Lonsdale will be delighted to hear from you at his website; ThePetFoodCon.com and advise you at no cost.